FROM MEMORY'S REALM

Sports Of Yesteryear and Sports Of Today,
As I Have Seen Them

(By Frank A. Winslow)

Turning now to the lighter side of life I consider some of the recreations with which I have come in contact.

As they pass in review, those which engaged my earliest attention naturally head the procession. Like all youngsters, I played tag—cross-tag I believe we called it—kicksick, I spy—which we always called High Spy—Duck on a rock and Indian.

Brave warriors we were as we raced up and down Lindsey Grove giving utterance to warwhoops which were quite likely to bring the owner, George Lindsey, onto the scene. And we were properly fearful of his ire.

But all of the so-called Lindsey Grove was not owned by George Lindsey. The middle section was owned by my father, the late David Winslow, and the southern section was owned by the late John S. Co-burn.

Be that as it may, we had merry old times there, building brush camps when winter came and racing potatoes, frying liver, etc. I cannot recall any of my "Indian" companions as still living. The late Oliver L. Hall, long time editor of the Bangor Commercial was one.

Of course we all went "in swimming." My crowd favored fresh water and the scene of our sport was Meadow Brook, the "ole swimming hole" being located just west of the Old County road, near the bridge on Sherer's Lane. Today it is overgrown with shrubs and nothing remains but indelible memory.

Baseball, I have known since I was knee high to a grasshopper. Somewhere on Oliver street, where habitations and wooded growth now abound, we played such youthful games as "three old cats," "round ball," and "choose up." No windows to smash—or we would probably have done it. As one of my previous articles related some of my baseball experiences. I will mark the good old newspaper "30" on that branch of today's article.

In Summer we swam, regretting that school vacations were so quickly over, and in Winter we skated and played ice polo. Our favorite resorts were the Meadow Brook and the Marsh, where, when conditions were good we ventured as far as the "second bridge" with these inevitable haystacks bearing on our right. For polo sticks we cut crooked alders. The biggest stick, and the one most in evidence in our games was wielded, without too much regard for its destination, by Phil Howard. I think my shins still bear some evidences of his activity.

We had a classy polo team and challenged Augusta to a game which was prevented by storm.

Perhaps I should devote a paragraph to kite-flying—much more popular in my early days than it is today. The bow kite, made from half of a flour barrel stave was favored although it did not rank far ahead of the diamond kite or the box kite. Given a strong March wind, a good kite and three balls of twine and we kids were right in our element until perhaps the kite "broke away."

Ranking next to baseball in my favor is football. Last Saturday I attended the Bates-Bowdoin game in Brunswick, and recalled that it was in my 49th consecutive year of seeing college football, sometimes seeing seven games in a season, and sometimes only one or two. I sat on the bleachers in all kinds of weather including that memorable rain and sleet storm at Orono, perhaps a score of years ago. I have been privileged to see all of Maine's famous ball players, including Frank Farrington, Ginger Fraser, Charlie Ray, and others too numerous to mention.

The only "big" college game I have ever seen was a Harvard and Yale contest, when I was too young to properly appreciate football. I do remember that it was the season when chrysanthemum haircuts were in vogue among men. Ever seen one? Then "you ain't seen nothin'" as the street phrase has it.

Roller polo, dating back to the famous H.M.B.'s was probably the most popular sport Rockland has ever known. A citizen, now deceased, paid for several women's hats he crushed in his excitement. The most famous players in the country came to Rockland, and I had the privilege of meeting them all in my capacity as referee over a period of 25 years.

Local teams, notably the Majors and the Centrals used to battle before excited crowds and The Courier-Gazette team defeated the Daily Stars three games out of five for a prize of $25 and untold glory.

Probably roller polo will never be restored to Rockland, but find anybody who ever attended a game and you've got the greatest enthusiast on your hands that you ever met. Can't you just see that red ball twirling in the netting and hear the thunderous applause as another goal is announced.

Bowling has always been popular in Rockland. In the days of Herbert Healey's alleys, I held the candlepin record for three seasons, and if this sounds like boasting let me say that my total has been far exceeded many many times since that day. But let me say in rebuttal that the alleys on which I bowled were none too good and the balls none too spherical. The smoothest bowler I ever knew was the late John W. Thomas one-time advertising man for The Courier-Gazette.

Big pins and duck pins were used occasionally but the "thin sticks" known as "candles" furnished the principal sport.

Other indoor games, as remembered by members of the old Y.M.C.A. included checkers, chess, crokinole and dominoes. Henry A. Howard and George T. Stewart were among the most successful checker players, while Emmet Rose, now residing in Portland, had few equals in chess.

Basketball today draws the largest crowds of any indoor sport. Locally it had its beginning in the old Y.M.C.A. days, when there was a team known as the Invincibles, with a marvelous record.

Charles K. Philbrick of Dark Harbor, who recently retired from the telephone service, was captain of the Invincibles which won 11 straight games, and of the High School team. This fine young athlete played baseball for Rockland High four years, and with a local team three years.

Score never gained a foothold in Rockland, although there were some fine players in the coast towns. A few games were played at Community Park. The players certainly "used their heads."

Tennis has had its devotees down through the years. "Lawn tennis" we used to call it. In my day there was a tendency to call it a sissy sport, and in deference to that sentiment some of us used to carry our racquets beneath our coats when we were on our way to the courts.

Having played tennis for quite a number of seasons, I am in a position to know that tennis is no "sissy" sport. The player is constantly on the move and exercises every muscle in his body. The best local player I ever knew was Alfred S. Black, who now makes his home in Mississippi, and who was a motion picture magnate while living in Rockland.

Horsetrotting regarded by many as "The King of Sports" has an unbroken record of at least three-quarters of a century in Knox County although now confined to the Union track. Knox Trotting Park, scene of so many notable race meets in by-gone years, has passed out of the picture—its demise being confirmed with the burning of the grandstand.

Many years ago there was a track at the so-called "Lake City" in Camden but Camden's glory as a trotting center rests with the park now used for baseball purposes. In this park stood one of the largest grand stands in the State of Maine. The last trace of it disappeared long ago, and living only is the memory of such well-known turfmen as the late H. M. Bean and Horace Tibbets.

There are conflicting opinions regarding the Pari-Mutuel which made its advent a few years ago. One follower of the turf, who has owned and driven race horses says emphatically that it has "ruined the sport." But track managers, busy counting the shekels may entertain decidedly contrary views, as do the winners of the "daily doubles."

Skipping from one subject to another I have never seen lacrosse played, but in Quebec many years ago, I saw a player headed for the grounds with a lacrosse stick over his shoulder, and it looked very much like an insurance risk.

And living so long in this neck of the woods, I have never seen a professional hockey game, but they tell me it is the fastest sport in existence.

It would never do to close this rambling article without paying tribute to softball, which has gained a tremendous foothold in Rockland and vicinity. Testifying to its popularity, one has but to see the crowds which watch the league games played at Schofield-White Park each Summer.

ROCKPORT'S NEW LIBRARY

The Rockport Library is open to the public. The hours are: Wednesday 12 noon to 5 p. m.; Saturday, 1 p. m. to 7 p. m. There are about 10,000 books in the library. With Mrs. James Miller as librarian, Miss Ella Graft and Mrs. Elsie Packard have been taking inventory on the books since the first of August.

The floor covering is green and gray inlaid linoleum; the woodwork and built-in shelves are painted white and the floor bookcases are metal, also painted white; the lighting is fluorescent. There are two reading tables, one adult and the other for boys and girls with furniture suitable to their age. In front there is a long desk for the librarian; the storage, lavatory and furnace rooms are off the main room.

The draperies, hand woven by Mrs. Eleanor Jones, have a background of beige with red, green and yellow threads woven in.

The building is heated by the latest in oil burning systems. The monument, in the foreground, will be moved to another site in that locality.

CHANGES AT GENERAL SEAFOODS

Francis Perry and Richard Feyler, Fisheries Division Executives Are Succeeded by

Brazier and Healey

James M. Brazier of Gloucester, Mass. has succeeded Francis Perry as manager of the Fisheries Division of General Seafoods at Rockland. He took charge of the fillet plant this week.

He has been associated with General Seafoods for several years and comes to Rockland from the Gloucester plant.

Richard Feyler, plant production foreman, who resigned this week to enter the Rodney Feyler wholesale and retail fish and lobster plant with his father, is succeeded by George Healey.

Healey a former Vinalhaven resident, has been with General Seafoods for three years and was, until this week, maintenance foreman of the plant.

Mr. Perry, who started the fisheries operation of General Seafoods in Rockland shortly after the close of the war, has not announced his future plans. A veteran of 27 years in the fishing business, he was formerly with Bay State Fisheries and joined General Seafoods some years ago in a merger of the two firms. He is widely known in fishing circles in New England and may be expected to return to the fishing industry in the future.

SEARCH FOR AGED HUNTER ENDS

James H. Belcher, Missing Two Days—Died
From Heart Attack In Searsmont Woods

The search of the woods on the Knox-Waldo County line in West Appleton and Searsmont for James H. Belcher, 69, who had been missing since Tuesday afternoon, ended early Thursday afternoon when his body was found in a woods path just over the county line in Searsmont.

Neighbors and sheriffs started the search for the elderly hunter late Tuesday when his hunting companion, Willis Reed, 20, reported that he had failed to return to his parked car at sunset. Belcher had last been seen about 1:30 p. m. by Reed as they entered the woods.

The search was carried on until 2 a. m. and was resumed at day-break Wednesday with as many as 100 men taking part in the search, directed by Sheriff Willard Pease and Warden Supervisor Charles Head.

Searchers returned to the woods Thursday morning and started the third day of the search. About 12:30 p. m. Merton Wadsworth and Leonard Briggs, searching a section of the farm of Byron Woods, came upon Belcher's body, lying face down across his rifle on an unused woods road about a mile from where he had left his car Tuesday.

Death was attributed to natural causes. Belcher is said to have suffered heart attacks previously.

Mr. Belcher is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mattie West Belcher; two daughters, Mrs. Mattie Howard of Searsmont, and Mrs. Hazel Lawler of Round Pond; three sons, Russell Belcher of Killen, Texas; James H. Belcher, Jr. of Washington, and Richard M. Belcher of Bermuda; two sisters, Mrs. Ida O'Mara of Attleboro, Mass., and Mrs. Mabel Fink of Hebronville, Mass., and several grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Sunday from the Coombs Funeral Home in Belfast with burial in the Miller Cemetery in Burketville.

THE BLACK CAT

By The Roving Reporter

I have been luxuriating on raspberries and cream the past few days the berries being native North Haven product, kindly sent to The Black Cat by Ted Foss of that town. He writes:

"Why do you consider it so wrong to raise raspberries in October? I have had a raspberry pie or two in the icebox every day since Sept. 15, and have given away several boxes. Am sending you two boxes by Captain Burgess of the North Haven II, and as they may have a rough passage across the Bay would suggest that even if they get jammed that they will still make good pies. They are as large and in as good shape as any that I sold to the Summer people last Summer, right now."

Belated evidences of our good Summer came also from Mrs. Evelyn Davis of 115 South Main street in the form of raspberries, roses and dandelions picked Tuesday.

Farnsworth Museum

Lincolnville Man Makes An

Exhibition Of Colored

Woodcuts There

It was announced today that an exhibition of colored woodcuts by William A. Shevis of Lincolnville is now on view in the Farnsworth Museum's Square Gallery.

Mr. Shevis is a graduate of the Massachusetts School of Art in Boston and has had his work shown in most of the national print exhibitions including the Carnegie Institute "Fine Prints of the Year" in 1948.

The art of wood block cutting was the first of the graphic arts to be discovered. One of the great charms of this old medium is in the feeling of the wood itself and this quality is preserved in Shevis' work. His talent is a broad one and he treats portraiture, landscape and purely decorative pieces with equal ease and power of expression. Twenty-six examples of his varied work are on exhibition.

Mr. Shevis is a member of the Boston Printmakers, the Northwest Printmakers, Laguna Beach (Cal.) Art Association and the American Artists Group.

An exhibition of watercolors from the museum collection is now being shown in the lower gallery. The museum is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and on Sunday from 1 until 5 p. m. Closed Monday.

TRUE VISION

I noticed a man the other day,
I pitied him as he went his way.
He followed a dog and held a cane.
I knew he dwelt on another plane.

I thought: "He can't see the world of ours—
The beauties of nature—trees—and flowers."

I thought, "To him it's a different place."
And I slowed my steps to match his pace.

I talked with the man who held the cane.
As we walked together down the lane.
And found that my pity I must change
To great respect and to longing strange.

That man could see far better than I!
His limit was boundless; mine, the sky.

On the road of life alone I trod;
He had a helper—the Son of God!

My vision was fixed on earthly toys;
His was centered on Heavenly joys.

That man was godly, was clean,
was kind;
And I knew that I, not he, was blind.

About Free Ads

The Courier-Gazette Restates Its Policy On Ads and Free Readers

The only way a newspaper can live is to have its income greater than its expenses, and the operating cost of all newspapers at present is very high. Only three sources of income are open to the average newspaper—subscriptions—job shop and advertising. In the case of The Courier-Gazette the advertising is strongest of the three.

As a result, advertising revenue must be protected if the paper is to continue to serve the community. An important source of revenue comes from advertising dancs, rummage sales, fairs, suppers and the like, which raise money by admission, sale or collection. It has long been the policy of this newspaper to give free items, (publicity support) when requested to these sales, fairs, etc., when advertisements are used in its columns. This is a courtesy to advertisers and an additional boost to the venture.

It is obvious that only to such ventures carrying paid advertising can the courtesy of free advertising be extended. These affairs are not news, but money-making ventures. It is the definite policy of this newspaper to carry items concerning these ventures only when they carry advertising matter in The Courier-Gazette.

This newspaper tries meticulously to be fair to all concerned and it certainly would not be fair to those who use legitimate advertising if free advertising is given those who do not choose to use the advertising support of its columns.

[EDITORIAL]

KNOX COUNTY IS FORTUNATE

Sitting at the Clerk of Court's desk in the Superior Courtroom, as if she had always been accustomed to it, is Miss Pearl Borgerson, who has been clerk to Milton M. Griffin ever since that capable official was elected 20-odd years ago. Mr. Griffin is an invalid at the moment, and the long flight of stairs to the courtroom bars his attendance there for the first time. In most cases it would have been necessary to summon a clerk from some other county but such an alternative was not necessary in Knox County which has a clerk to the clerk who is letter perfect in the multitude of details connected with that office. We believe that Miss Borgerson is the only woman in the State serving in that capacity.

THE NEED OF RAIN

In spite of frequent rains the past few weeks, intermingled with perfect fall weather, the State's water level is far below normal at this season of the year, and with freezing weather so close at hand, the situation naturally causes concern. We have an example of the shortage right here at home for Mirror Lake, source of our water supply, is quite low—not alarmingly so but uncomfortable enough under the conditions.

A POPULATION INCREASE

Maine's population under the approaching census, will not be far below the million mark. Estimates show an increase of 62,000 or 7.3 percent above the 1940 census figures. This would bring the total to 909,066.

AN OBJECT LESSON

Dangers of present day motor traffic are brought vividly at home to those who ride or walk on Augusta's Main street. Placed there by the Division of Traffic Safety as an accident prevention warning was a mass of twisted steel, torn rubber and blood-soaked upholstery that Sunday morning bore four High School youths on a carefree hunting expedition. One of them is now dead—another is very seriously injured. The hundreds of people who stopped to look at this scrap metal also remembered the other car in the accident. So far of that car's five passengers three have died. The death of two of them orphaned seven children.

Sylvester Says:

"You've got a choice here!"
The only country in the world where you can still choose your own style of clothing; choose to build a home of your own; choose the materials and location. Take away the right to choose, to select, and to own and you destroy democracy. On a nationwide scale here's how Americans choose to spend their incomes.

They spend four times more for food than they do for housing and rent. They spend 1 1/2 times more for clothing and 1 1/2 times more for household expenses. They spend as much on liquor and tobacco as they do on homes and they spend twice as much for liquor, tobacco, travel, entertainment, horseracing, cosmetics and other things rarely referred to as necessities than they do on housing.

It's a great country. You still have a chance to choose between freedom and government-controlled regimentation.

Vacuum Cleaners For Crannies
Home makers who own a vacuum cleaner may find the small nozzle handy for cleaning corners and crannies in the kitchen that are often neglected because they are so hard to reach with a brush or cloth. If these inaccessible places are not cleaned, enough crumbs or bits of food may accumulate in them to keep pantry shelves alive and ready to infest food supplies. To clean such places, use the vacuum cleaner and use the attachment with the smallest nozzle. Very often the pull of the vacuum will quickly and easily draw out crumbs and dirt difficult to remove in any other way. Instead of the usual method of emptying drawers and turning them upside down, let the vacuum nozzle lift out the litter.

Registered Dusting Planes
Altogether, 463 airplane dusting and spraying operators, using 1,303 planes, now are registered with the Civil Aeronautics administration. The CAA lists 26 operators with 40 planes as engaged in mosquito control. Other listings in the study tell of commercial airplane uses in altogether 57 activities, including seeding, fence patrol, cotton-checking, coyote-hunting, photography, mapping, agitating air against frost and spreading fertilizer. In one small state (New Jersey) a survey shows 2070 pesticide applications made on farm crops last year, on 313,000 acres. While this was mostly custom work, some flying farmers piloted their own planes.

Mrs. Josephine Morse found a blue violet last week. I found a wild raspberry bush with blossoms and green berries on it last week. I brought it into the house and the green berries are now turning red.

How's that for the last week in October?

Among those who read my recent article concerning Rev. Frank W. Sandford, was Alfred Johnson, who recalls an incident which occurred while he was clerking in the Fuller & Cobb store. Sandford was a customer there one day and on his departure from the store dropped a $50 bill on the floor. One of the clerks overtook him and notified him of his loss. Mr. Sandford rewarded the finder with a ten-dollar bill.

Ganders Fly High

The Pirates Lose and Win—Very Sick "Medics" In Need Of Pills

The Ganders kept up their season's winning streak by taking over Shields' Pirates last Friday night and so far (knocking on wood) the Gander boys have a clean slate, having won four and lost none. It was a case of the old Garrison finish pulling the game away from the other side when they thought the match was sewed up.

The Pirates had won the first string by 19 and the second by four, but the Goose and Poole turned the heat on in the last string and with the help of "Uncle Harry" Young turned back the Pirates by 19 pins. Poole again led all the bowlers with 305 for total, but Shields won the honors for high single with 112 in his first effort. "Hen" Anderson not having fully recovered from the effects of becoming a father a few nights previous, seemed to be still troubled with the shakes, for his control was terrible and his score of 227 was terrible. But everybody expects Hen to bear up bravely and show improvement from now on. One great source of satisfaction to him was Ted MacDonald's score of 217. "See," said Henry, "I'm not the worst one in the business."

The Pirates took it out on the very sick "Medics" last Monday night, however, and the smell of fresh shellac was all over the place. Wym Guilford's team of Doctors will stand a lot of doctoring up as they have not won a match as yet.

Wym says his team ought to be able to get the right dope after a while with the bunch of M.D.'s, D.D.'s, T. D.'s and D. D.'s, etc. There is "Doc" Mills and M. D., Doc. Rae a D. D. S., Doctor Drew a D. P. S. (Doctor of Postage Stamps), Dr. Sanborn an H. D. D. (Hunting Dog Doctor), Dr. Guilford an L.P.D. (Lobster Pot Doctor), and Dr. Grimes with his P. and L. degree (Doctor of Fish and Livers). But with all this imposing lineup, Captain Wym said he guessed they would all have to take a pill if they were to get any better. "If they get any worse than this last exhibition," said old Doc Guilford, "I'm going to take a run-out pill and fly the coop." "You will note," continued Capt. (Doc) Guilford "there isn't a D. B. in the lot." "No, not a darn Doctor of Bowling in the whole lot."

Shot Big Bucks

Two Dozen Fall Since the Opening Of Season In Northern Counties

With the entire State now open to deer hunting, Commissioner Stobie implored hunters to "Dress so you can be seen and look before you shoot."

Stobie made no prediction as to the total take of whitetails this Fall but said deer are known to be deeper in the woods than for several seasons. "Weather conditions will affect the deer kill greatly," he said.

In the eight days since the season opened in the northern counties, two dozen bucks weighing more than 200 pounds apiece have been registered in the State's new "Biggest Bucks in Maine Club." Development Commission source stated.

The Commission is surprised at the number of big deer so far in with the rest of the State open to hunting this month, Maine undoubtedly will produce evidence that whitetails here are outstandingly heavy in relation to those found in other big game areas, it was forecast.

In Municipal Court
Eugene Winchenbach of Waldo-boro was given 30-day sentences in Municipal Court Friday morning on charges involving violation of the clam laws. First charge against the clam digger was for violation of probation imposed by Recorder Alfred Strout on Sept. 21 when he was before the court on charges of digging clams in a restricted area. He entered a plea of not guilty; was found guilty and sentenced.

A charge of digging clams without a license brought a 30-day jail sentence which Winchenbach appealed to the February term of Superior Court.

The third warrant charged him with digging clams in a restricted area in Cushing. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail and entered an appeal to Superior Court.

Complainant was Coastal Warden Donald Hickey.

Lucien Bishop of Lincolnville was fined costs of court of $2.70 on charges of failing to have a motor vehicle inspection sticker.

THE COUNTY AGENT'S CORNER

Wentworth Observes That Nobleboro Is Fast Becoming a Poultry Raising Community

Dear Farmer:

Nobleboro is becoming a poultry town as many farmers are shifting from dairy into poultry. A recent call on Bertram Ricker found his dairy barn housing 1,000 pullets. Irving Oliver also has a good sized flock and this past year, David Chapman although in the neighboring town of Damariscotta, has added a small flock of hens to his dairy herd.

Wallace Spear & Son, North Waldo, are building a new hen house that will be used both for breeding and for layers. It is double deck 30 to 70.

According to the October Poultry Magazine, the U. S. Department of Agriculture, it is expected that the January to June egg production will exceed that of this year. This will mean less returns to the poultrymen.

At the beginning of 1949 there were about 2,000 bulls in service in artificial breeding associations throughout the United States. On an average each bull is serving 1250 cows.

Recent figures from the University of Delaware published in the

Rockport Lunch Gains Recognition

The three Farm Bureau groups in Rockport, Simonton, Rockport and West Rockport, have been cited by Gertrude Griney, State supervisor of the school lunch program, in an article in the publication "Maine Schools," just issued.

Subject of the article is the school lunch program which the three bureaus established in the community the past year and which are now serving hot noon lunches to 100 pupils.

The bureau members enlisted the aid of Home Demonstration Agent Esther Mayo, school board members, school officials and teachers and welded the whole into a working group with the people of the town to put the project across.

Now one year old, the program has attracted Statewide attention. A paid cook is employed at Rockport High School with two Farm Bureau members assisting her each day with each of the three bureaus supplying workers in rotation.

Many a Farm Bureau member, this past Summer, earmarked a part of their farm produce for use in the lunch program this Winter.

Lunches served are classed by the State as Class A which must contain two ounces of meat, six ounces of vegetables; milk and bread and butter or margarine.

The project has developed in a program in which the whole town is interested and supporting.

The above photograph, taken by a Department of Agriculture photographer, shows the lineup at the serving kitchen in the town school and was used on the cover of the publication which featured the article on the Rockport program.

Buy Jersey Bulls

Breeding Co-op Adds To Its Herd At the Vassalboro Model Bull Farm

Two promising young Jersey bulls have been bought by the Maine (Artificial) Breeding Co-operative for use at its bull farm in Vassalboro.

The bulls were bought from the Pinnacle Rock Farm in Connecticut. Both were sired by Juggler's Tycoon, a senior superior sire. His daughters have averaged 10,349 pounds of milk and 540 pounds of butterfat in 305 days on twice-a-day milking. They have had an average classification rating of 83.5.

The dams of both the new MBC Jersey bulls are classed very good on type. Both have twice-a-day milking, 305-day records of over 10,000 pounds of milk.

The new bulls were born in January and March of this year. They are both outstanding in type and most dairymen who've seen them like their looks very much. Both are line-bred Sybils backed by the good type and very high milk production of their ancestors.

The MBC has about 35 outstanding bulls and provides semen for breeding Maine dairy cows of four breeds, Ayrshire, Guernsey, Holstein and Jersey.

Membership is open to any farmer in the areas of the State being served by MBC technicians.

Leaders' Party

Will Be Held Next Monday At Damariscotta—Mrs. Shibles To Speak

A party for 4-H leaders is being held Monday night Nov. 7 at 7 p. m. in the Baptist Church Vestry in Damariscotta.

"Highlights for 1950" will be reviewed by Loana S. Shibles, Club Agent.

4-H problems will be discussed by County 4-H Club Project Leader, Mrs. Hazel Gammon of North Warren.

One new game will be taught by Frank Flagg, leader of the Jeffersonian Farmers.

The remainder of the evening will be spent with games and prizes followed by plenty of sandwiches, donuts, cookies, and coffee.

Harrow Lime Under

Maine potato growers who spread lime on their cultivated fields this Fall would be wise to harrow it in right after it's applied, Oscar L. Wyman, crops specialist, Agricultural Extension Service, University of Maine, pointed out today.

If farmers spread lime before the ground freezes and don't mix it with the soil by harrowing, the lime will wash down the slopes during the Fall rains and the Spring runoff. This makes it very important to be sure the lime is mixed with the soil on all bare or plowed fields, explained Wyman. All that's usually needed is one thorough harrowing, the Extension crops specialist emphasized.

POULTRY HOUSE VENTILATION

To Be Studied By Experimental Station; Public Utilities To Assist Financing

Research on ventilation of Maine poultry houses is being started by the Maine Agricultural Experiment Station, reports Dr. Frank W. Peikert, head of the agricultural engineering department.

In its initial studies, the Experiment Station will investigate both gravity and forced methods of ventilation in several commercial broiler houses in Maine. Detailed studies are planned this Winter in a number of broiler houses in Waldo county. Information will also be gathered on other broiler plants in that vicinity.

Dr. Peikert says that the studies are being started because very little information is available on ventilation of poultry houses which Maine poultrymen can use for their specific conditions. He hopes that the results will provide specific recommendations as to the type of equipment that should be used for ventilation, the location of intakes and outlets, and the amount of air movement required. However, several years of work will be necessary before conclusions of this type can be drawn.

Points to be investigated include the amount of ventilation needed to provide the proper temperature and humidity for various ages of birds, and to maintain dry litter and to avoid condensation of moisture on the walls. The Station will also study the proper location of intakes for fresh air, the ammonia content in the air under the various ventilating conditions, and the relative effectiveness of ventilating with fans and with gravity.

Financial assistance is being furnished in part by the Bangor Hydro-Electric Co., the Central Maine Power Co., and the Maine Public Service Co.

Buying Maine Apples

PMA Supports Growers; To Distribute the Surplus to School Cafeterias

Paying $1.70 a box in order to support the price, the U. S. Department of Agriculture will continue to buy Maine apples until at least Nov. 19. The apples will be distributed to school lunch programs in Maine, Fred J. Nutter, of Corinna, chairman of the Maine State Committee of the Production and Marketing Administration, announced today.

The fresh apple purchase program was started in Maine on Oct. 10. About 10 carloads of Maine apples have been bought under the PMA program to date, Nutter said.

Maine orchardists may offer to sell apples to the program by contacting Edwin H. Bates, purchase representative, State PMA office, Orono.

Nutter pointed out that the outlets available will not be sufficient to take care of all apples which are likely to be offered to the PMA. He said that offers from growers without access to cold storage would be considered first.

Flyer Reactions Studied Through X-Ray Equipment

Knowledge of how a flier reacts physically to the strain when he makes a crash landing or is catapulted from a crippled plane is being obtained in one of the more recent uses of the millionth-of-a-second X-ray equipment.

Both army and navy medical laboratories are experimenting by making sequence photographs to obtain visual evidence of what happens to a pilot's spine, heart and other organs under such conditions.

In crash landings, a flier undergoes a shock equivalent to 10 times that suffered by a motorist if he could halt his machine in one second from an 85-mile-an-hour speed. Body harnesses cushion such deceleration blows, but more knowledge of the action of the body organs may be of value in further solving the problem, according to Dr. Charles M. Slack, research director of the Westinghouse lamp division, Bloomfield, N. J.

Advent of supersonic airplane speeds presents another difficulty. If a pilot tried to climb out at such a speed, he would be cut to ribbons by the wind, so a mechanical device "fires him out" when a button is pushed.

The high acceleration necessary to get the pilot out without his striking the plane causes another violent jerk to his organs, 20 times as severe as the normal pull of gravity, Dr. Slack notes.

Old Bugs with New Tricks Baffle Strawberry Grower

Sometimes it looks as though the war between men and bugs never will end. No sooner is one insect pest overcome than a new one appears or an old one is found up to new tricks.

For instance, the southeast Louisiana strawberry growers are distressed to discover that after all these years the ground beetle, a little bug found almost everywhere, has started eating strawberries. First, he eats the little seed off the outside of the berry and then he starts in on the berry itself and nibbles a little bite out of it, about like a bird might take at one peck.

Won't some of the powerful new insecticides take care of the ground beetle? Yes, one of them will. Benzene hexachloride will kill the ground beetle in the wink of an eye. But there's only one catch—benzene hexachloride has such a powerful odor and lingers so long on anything it touches that it can't be used on strawberries without endangering all the fruit on the plant or anywhere in the vicinity.

Experts have advised the berry growers to use an older and slower method of making poison pellets of sodium fluosilicate, meal, sugar and water and scattering them along the row, while new means of fighting the beetle are being worked out.

Navy Sells Famous Sub, Once "Squalus," for Junk
One of the most famous submarines was headed for the scrap heap when the Squalus was sold, along with another navy submarine, the Sea Dragon, for $88,000. The Squalus was better known as the Squalus.

As the Squalus, she hung up a good war record in the Pacific, damaging or sinking twenty enemy ships, including eight warships. But it was as the Squalus that she became known throughout the country in 1939 when she sank off Portsmouth, N. H., on a practice dive.

The Squalus went down in 240 feet of water on May 23, 1939, with a crew of 59 officers and enlisted men. Twenty-six were rescued before the $5,000,000 vessel was raised to the surface on Sept. 13 of that year.

Almost a year later, on May 15, she was back on the active list under the name Sailfish. On her trial run under the new name, the reconditioned submarine went over almost the same course as she had used in 1939. Aboard were five survivors of the first practice dive. When sold, the submarine had an overall length of 231 feet, a beam of 21 feet, six inches. Her surface displacement was 790 tons and submerged she displaced 1,092 tons. She did 15 knots on the surface and 10.5 knots submerged. She was retired Oct. 27, 1945.

Unfailing Sweet Springs Generate Jericho Oasis
Though walls come tumbling down there always will be a Jericho.

That is the conclusion of the National Geographic society after examining the geography and history of Jericho's site in the verdant Jordan river valley. Through this village of Biblical fame and across the Allenby bridge into Trans-Jordan now pass thousands of Arab refugees from Jerusalem and Jaffa.

There always has been a settlement on or near the biblical site 16 miles northeast of Jerusalem and six miles north of the Dead sea because the unfailing waters of Wadi. Qilt and Elisha's fountain meet there to create a green, life-giving oasis.

Modern Jericho is a village of a few hundred Arabs on the lower Jordan plain a mile southeast of the site of the walled city "blown" down by Joshua's trumpeting priests.

Often before the seven-day Biblical siege, Jericho had been destroyed. Always, it rose from its ashes. Delving deeply into the mound known today as Tell es Sultan, archaeologists have found evidence of 18 successive settlements, stretching back to 5,000 B. C. Dwellings and artifacts at the bottom are among the oldest works of man yet discovered.

An Engagement

Helen Frances Paul

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Paul of 452 Old County road are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Helen Frances, to George C. Whittier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Whittier of Bucksport.

Miss Paul is employed by the Rockland Wholesale Grocery Company and Mr. Whittier is stock manager at Nelson Bros. Garage, Rockland.

No date has been set for the wedding.

The following letter was received from Mrs. Edith Kendall, R. N., Wilmington, Del.:

"Oct. 7 a meeting was held at New York State Nurses' Association Office, District No. 14, Brooklyn, at which time John Baetes, representative, Pennsylvania Railroad, Wilmington, Del., office, spoke regarding a Convention train to the American Nurses' Association Biennial Convention California, May 7 to 12, 1950.

"The purpose of the meeting was to present the idea of a Convention Train and to discuss such a plan in regards to accommodations, approximate cost ($500), time of departure, and return, stop-overs, sight seeing trips, etc., as available if said plans are adopted. In order to make such a tour possible, it was stated at the meeting that it will be necessary for us to secure 150 to 250 nurses and their friends and relatives for the proposed trip, covering a period of three weeks.

"We hope that you and your member and other interested nursing groups in your state, plus any other interested persons, will join us in adopting this proposed plan for a Convention Train. If such a plan is agreeable to you, will you begin immediately publicity in order to have an approximate estimate of interested persons on or before Nov. 15, 1949, said estimate to be forwarded to me by that date. This is in order that the Wilmington office of the Pennsylvania Railroad can prepare a flyer with complete information and reservation blanks, which will be sent to all interested in our proposed plan, this flyer to be mailed out no later than December 15, 1949."

SERMONETTE

If you look through your church hymnals you will be surprised to note how many of the hymns were written in the long ago. The most amazing thing about congregational singing is that however correctly sung, few of the singers ever note who wrote the hymn or tune or when.

Hymns do not just happen. Many are born during the stress of wars or the distress of the time when written. To know their history would make for more effective singing. The greatest composers of all time have given expression to the loftiest conception of the holiness of God, of Jesus Christ, and the church, in hymns.

It has long been my conviction that in hymns are found a truer apprehension of the majesty and holiness of God and His kingdom and less of theological dogma than is to be found in literature or most sermons.

A most common mistake is made when it is thought that in this day no great hymns of consequence have been written. In what great war has a nobler hymn been written than Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn of the Republic," when one more patriotic than "America the Beautiful" by Katherine Lee Bates, particularly when sung to the music of the former municipal organist, Will C. Macfarlane?

Rockland's beloved minister who built the Galilee Chapel, wrote a hymn that has been translated into almost every language on earth and which has been sung the world around—"Throw Out The Life Line" by Rev. E. S. Ufford. Can you think of a more beautiful hymn than Phillips Brooks' "On Little Town of Bethlehem?"

Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick's hymn "Grant Us Wisdom, Grant Us Power!" ranks among the best, old or new.

I want to examine with you this Fall some of the great hymns of the church and their writers.

Lucien K. Green & Son
FURRIERS
16 SCHOOL ST., ROCKLAND

Since seeing the delightful movie it will be interesting to watch his "That Midnight Kiss" at The Strand.

Strand, great interest and curiosity has been evinced in the young tenor, Mario Lanza, who certainly "emerged from the stereo-type with considerable impact" to quote from a review. Called on to sing the arias "Una furtiva lagrime" from Donizetti's L'Elisir d'Amore, and "Celeste Aida" as well as a duet from Lucia di Lammermoor with Kathryn Grayson and three songs of a higher nature, Mr. Lanza revealed a command of style and a voice that is beautiful in quality, of wide range, and flexible. And it is not all voice, for he is rather handsome with a pleasant and ingratiating manner.

While I have not been able to learn much about him, I do know that he is Italian-American and at one time he worked as a piano mover in Philadelphia. It is said that William K. Huff, director of the Philadelphia Forum, heard Lanza singing while helping to move pianos into the Academy of Music for a concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Huff arranged for him to sing for Serge Koussevitzky, who invited him to study at the Berkshire Music Center.

After service in the Army, the tenor entered on a career which eventually led him to Hollywood and recording and managerial contracts. He is hailed by some as the "Young Caruso." In any event

Medical Courier for Oct. 15 carries a picture of this sensational new tenor shown with Constantine Collias in King final decision on the matter of phrasing for the RCA Victor recording, just released featuring Lanza. Of the recording, it is said "Mario Lanza, billed as the new Caruso, enters the picture with three discs, only one of any account. His Verdi and Puccini duets, 'Verdi, 'Celeste Aida' with the Victor Orchestra, and Puccini's 'One Gilda Manina' from Boheme, rather carefully sung reveals a fresh strong lyric voice. Despite immaturities of style, the vocalism has its impressive moments. The other two discs, Kern, Nulie, etc., mean little."

A pleasant surprise was a letter from Harris Shaw, who still belongs to us even though his musical activities keep him in Boston and thereabouts. Speaking of Walter Piston, a former Rockland boy and now one of our outstanding musical figures, Harris said that Piston studied with him in Boston and that he was able to intercede for him getting into Harvard, where he has held a position of eminence. Harris comments "wonderful student, returning nature but brilliant. At that time not enough money to buy anything and struggling along."

I suspect that Harris held out a generous and helping hand at this

STEAMBOAT YARNS of Ships and Men

John M. Richardson

Steamboaters' Problem

This great ship came to the Penobscot on an errand of mercy.

Back around 1909 this section of the Maine coast was visited by a Winter of extreme severity with much snow in December and January and a resulting ice embargo that brought fears of starvation for the island folk in quarters far removed from the mainland. As a result a benevolent government sent the great steamboat, shown above to banish the danger and open up the Penobscot sea lanes.

The huge vessel huffed and she puffed and did open up some channels and some seams of her own and is shown above working on the heavy ice off Crotch Island whose stone sheds and derricks appear in the background.

Near the huge laker but not shown in this picture was the famous local ice breaker, Gov. Bodwell, and some say, slightly ahead of the huge two stacker.

Who can remember the visit of this stranger, her name and some of the circumstances concerning her ice breaking activities. Strand tickets await the first two stories.

Frank Miller To The Rescue

The Steamboat Editor was just getting a little less red behind the ears over his slip of the pen in saying the Boston-Bangor Division of the Eastern had used Rows Wharf Boston, as a landing place when he knew perfectly well it had been Foster's and India, when appeared a champion, in a left-handed sort of way.

From Frank H. Miller of Belfast an old steamboat in his own right, comes the comforting (?) word that I was not entirely wrong. Rows Wharf was used as a landing place. On this particular foggy morning Capt. Ezra Curtis was bringing in the old paddler, City of Rockland, and he brought her into Rows Wharf, over ten feet in to be exact and directly into the landing slip. For many months after that friends would ask the irate captain if he'd take them uptown in the Rockland.

Many correct answers came into last Saturday's problem monstrosity. It was the steamer Vinal Haven at her cockeyed worst, fresh from the builder's yard at Searsport and as yet not having received the great improvement which took place when she was swept by a lively fire in January, 1893. When the steamer came back from builders, months later, she was vastly improved both in appearance and performance. The first two letters opened of the score received, belonged to Mrs. Blanche Merchant, South street, and Harland C. Davis of Pleasant Point, Cushing. To them go tickets to Strand Theatre.

(WJZ Saturdays 10 to 10.30 a. m.)

The program director and commentator is Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, newly appointed Radio Chairman of the Federation. Orchestral music will be heard for the most part through records and transcriptions, while soloists will be supplied at the outset by the network. Later these will probably come from the ranks of distinguished young artists who have reached prominence through the Federation's Young Artists and Student Musicians contests. The underlying motive of the program is to introduce a fine musical feature on the air, and in some measure to help offset the recent withdrawals of several distinguished offerings on major networks.

Mary Garden returned to America on Sept. 28 for the first time since her voluntary retirement from the stage. The return was just as spontaneous as the withdrawal had been. Both happened on the spur of the moment, or rather without previous fanfare. One evening in 1930 Miss Garden decided that the time had come to give up her operatic career, and out of the opera house she walked, never to return. This year she decided she would like to see America again and her numerous friends here—and here she is, still a unique personality.

During the last war Miss Garden threw her home in Scotland open to American soldiers. On the estate of her sister as many as 190 men at a time were stationed—and entertained. Miss Garden is to make a lecture tour across the Continent and hopes to see some of these "boys" during the tour. Subjects she will discuss in her lecture are music and her personal memories, spiced with many anecdotes. Some of this material is contained in a biography started in 1938 and now finished awaiting publication.

FROM MEMORY'S REALM

Sports Of Yesteryear and Sports Of Today, As I Have Seen Them

(By Frank A. Winslow)

Turning now to the lighter side of life I consider some of the recreations with which I have come in contact.

As they pass in review, those which engaged my earliest attention naturally head the procession. Like all youngsters, I played tag—cross-tag I believe we called it—kickstick, I spy—which we always called High Spy—Duck on a rock and Indian.

Brave warriors we were as we raced up and down Lindsey Grove giving utterance to warwhoops which were quite likely to bring the owner, George Lindsey, onto the scene. And we were properly fearful of his ire.

But all of the so-called Lindsey Grove was not owned by George Lindsey. The middle section was owned by my father, the late David Winslow, and the southern section was owned by the late John S. Coburn.

Be that as it may, we had merry old times there, building brush camps when winter came and roasting potatoes, frying liver, etc. I cannot recall any of my "Indian" companions as still living. The late Oliver L. Hall, long time editor of the Bangor Commercial was one.

Of course we all went "in swimming." My crowd favored fresh water and the scene of our sport was Meadow Brook, the "ole swimming hole" being located just west of the Old County road, near the bridge on Sherer's Lane. Today it is overgrown with shrubs and nothing remains but indelible memory.

Baseball, I have known since I was knee high to a grasshopper. Somewhere on Oliver street, where habitations and wooded growth now abound, we played such youthful games as "three old cats," "round ball," and "choose up." No wind-downs to smash—or we would probably have done it. As one of my previous articles related some of my baseball experiences, I will mark the good old newspaper "30" on that branch of today's article.

In summer we swam, regretting that school vacations were so quickly over, and in winter we skated and played ice polo. Our favorite resorts were the Meadow Brook and the Marsh, where, when conditions were good we ventured as far as the "second bridge" with those inevitable haystacks bearing on our right. For polo sticks we cut crooked alders. The biggest stick, and the one most in evidence in our games was wielded, without too much regard for its destination, by Phil Howard. I think my shins still bear some evidences of his activity.

We had a classy polo team and challenged Augusta to a game which was prevented by storm.

Perhaps I should devote a paragraph to kite-flying—much more popular in my early days than it is today. The bow kite, made from half of a flour barrel stave was favored although it did not rank far ahead of the diamond kite or the box kite. Given a strong March wind, a good kite and three balls of twine and we kids were right in our element until perhaps the kite "broke away."

Ranking next to baseball in my favor is football. Last Saturday I attended the Bates-Bowdoin game in Brunswick, and recalled that it was in my 49th consecutive year of seeing college football, sometimes seeing seven games in a season, and sometimes only one or two. I sat on the bleachers in all kinds of weather including that memorable rain and sleet storm at Orono, perhaps a score of years ago. I have been privileged to see all of Maine's famous ball players, including Frank Farrington, Ginger Fraser, Charlie Ray, and others too numerous to mention.

The only "big" college game I have ever seen was a Harvard and Yale contest, when I was too young to properly appreciate football. I do remember that it was the season when chrysanthemum haircuts were in vogue among men. Ever seen one? Then "you ain't seen nothing," as the street phrase has it. Roller polo, dating back to the famous H.M.B.'s was probably the most popular sport Rockland has ever known. A citizen, now deceased, paid for several women's hats he crushed in his excitement. The most famous players in the country came to Rockland, and I had the privilege of meeting them all in my capacity as referee over a period of 25 years.

Local teams, notably the Majors and the Centrals used to battle before excited crowds and The Courier-Gazette team defeated the Daily Stars three games out of five for a prize of $25 and untold glory.

Probably roller polo will never be restored to Rockland, but find anybody who ever attended a game and you've got the greatest enthusiast on your hands that you ever met. Can't you just see that red ball twirling in the netting, and hear the thunderous applause as another goal is announced.

Bowling has always been popular in Rockland. In the days of Herbert Healey's alleys, I held the candlepin record for three seasons, and if this sounds like boasting let me say that my total has been far exceeded many times since that day. But let me say in recital that the alleys on which I bowled were none too good and the balls none too spherical. The smoothest bowler I ever knew was the late John W. Thomas one-time advertising man for The Courier-Gazette.

Big pins and duck pins were used occasionally but the "thin sticks" known as "candles" furnished the principal sport.

Other indoor games, as remembered by members of the old Y.M.C.A. included checkers, chess, crokinole and dominoes. Henry A. Howard and George T. Stewart were among the most successful checker players, while Emmet Reese, now residing in Portland, had few equals in chess.

Basketball today draws the largest crowds of any indoor sport. Locally it had its beginning in the old Y.M.C.A. days, when there was a team known as the Invincibles, with a marvelous record.

Charles K. Philbrick of Dark Harbor, who recently retired from the telephone service, was captain of the Invincibles which won 11 straight games, and of the High School team. This fine young athlete played baseball for Rockland High four years, and with a local team three years.

Soccer never gained a foothold in Rockland, although there were some fine players in the coast towns. A few games were played at Community Park. The players certainly "used their heads."

Tennis has had its devotees down through the years. "Lawn tennis" we used to call it. In my day there was a tendency to call it a sissy sport, and in deference to that sentiment some of us used to carry our rackets beneath our coats when we were on our way to the courts.

Having played tennis for quite a number of seasons, I am in a position to know that tennis is no "sissy" sport. The player is constantly on the move and exercises every muscle in his body. The best local player I ever knew was Alfred S. Black, who now makes his home in Mississippi, and who was a motion picture magnate while living in Rockland.

Horsetrotting regarded by many as "The King of Sports" has an unbroken record of at least three-quarters of a century in Knox County although now confined to the Union track. Knox Trotting Park, scene of so many notable race meets in by-gone years, has passed out of the picture—its demise being confirmed with the burning of the grandstand.

Many years ago there was a track at the so-called "Lake City" in Camden but Camden's glory as a trotting center rests with the park now used for baseball purposes. In this park stood one of the largest grandstands in the State of Maine. The last trace of it disappeared long ago, and living only is the memory of such well-known turfmen as the late H. M. Bean and Horace Tibbets.

There are conflicting opinions regarding the Pari-Mutuel which made its advent a few years ago. One follower of the turf, who has owned and driven race horses says emphatically that it has "ruined the sport." But track managers, busy counting the shekels may entertain decidedly contrary views, as do the winners of the "dally doubles."

Skipping from one subject to another I have never seen lacrosse played, but in Quebec many years ago, I saw a player headed for the grounds with a lacrosse stick over his shoulder, and it looked very much like an insurance risk.

And living so long in this neck of the woods, I have never seen a professional hockey game, but they tell me it is the fastest sport in existence.

It would never do to close this rambling article without paying tribute to softball, which has gained a tremendous foothold in Rockland and vicinity. Testifying to its popularity, one has but to see the crowds which watch the league games played at Schofield-White Park each Summer.

ROCKPORT'S NEW LIBRARY

The Rockport Library is open to the public. The hours are: Wednesday 12 noon to 5 p. m.; Saturday, 1 p. m. to 7 p. m. There are about 10,000 books in the library, with Mrs. James Miller as librarian. Miss Ella Graft and Mrs. Elsie Packard have been taking inventory on the books since the first of August.

The floor covering is green and gray inlaid linoleum; the woodwork and built-in shelves are painted white and the floor bookcases are metal, also painted white; the lighting is fluorescent. There are two reading tables, one adult and the other for boys and girls with furniture suitable to their age. In front there is a long desk for the librarian; the storage, lavatory and furnace rooms are off the main room.

The draperies, hand woven by Mrs. Eleanor Jones, have a background of beige with red, green and yellow threads woven in.

The building is heated by the latest in oil burning systems. The monument, in the foreground, will be moved to another site in that locality.

CHANGES AT GENERAL SEAFOODS

Francis Perry and Richard Feyler, Fisheries Division Executives Are Succeeded by Brazier and Healey

James M. Brazier of Gloucester, Mass. has succeeded Francis Perry as manager of the Fisheries Division of General Seafoods at Rockland. He took charge of the fillet plant this week.

He has been associated with General Seafoods for several years and comes to Rockland from the Gloucester plant.

Richard Feyler, plant production foreman, who resigned this week to enter the Rodney Feyler wholesale and retail fish and lobster plant with his father, is succeeded by George Healey.

Healey a former Vinhaven resident, has been with General Seafoods for three years and was until this week, maintenance foreman of the plant.

Mr. Perry, who started the fisheries operation of General Seafoods in Rockland shortly after the close of the war, has not announced his future plans. A veteran of 27 years in the fishing business, he was formerly with Bay State Fisheries and joined General Seafoods some years ago in a merger of the two firms. He is widely known in fishing circles in New England and may be expected to return to the fishing industry in the future.

SEARCH FOR AGED HUNTER ENDS

James H. Belcher, Missing Two Days—Died From Heart Attack In Searsmont Woods

The search of the woods on the Knox-Waldo County line in West Appleton and Searsmont for James H. Belcher, 69, who had been missing since Tuesday afternoon, ended early Thursday afternoon when his body was found in a woods path just over the county line in Searsmont.

Neighbors and sheriffs started the search for the elderly hunter late Tuesday when his hunting companion, Willis Reed, 20, reported that he had failed to return to his parked car at sunset. Belcher had last been seen about 1:30 p. m. by Reed as they entered the woods.

The search was carried on until 2 a. m. and was resumed at day-break Wednesday with as many as 100 men taking part in the search, directed by Sheriff Willard Pease and Warden Supervisor Charles Head.

Searchers returned to the woods Thursday morning and started the third day of the search. About 12:30 p. m. Merton Wadsworth and Leonard Briggs, searching a section of the farm of Byron Woods, came upon Belcher's body, lying face down across his rifle on an unused woods road about a mile from where he had left his car Tuesday.

Death was attributed to natural causes. Belcher is said to have suffered heart attacks previously.

Mr. Belcher is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mattie West Belcher; two daughters, Mrs. Mattie Howard of Searsmont; Mrs. Hazel Lawler of Round Pond; three sons, Russell Belcher of Killen, Texas; James H. Belcher, Jr., of Washington, and Richard M. Belcher of Bermuda; two sisters, Mrs. Ida O'Mara of Attleboro, Mass., and Mrs. Mabel Pink of Hebronville, Mass., and several grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Sunday from the Combs Funeral Home in Belfast with burial in the Miller Cemetery in Burketville.

THE BLACK CAT

By The Roving Reporter

I have been luxuriating on raspberries and cream the past few days the berries being native North Haven product, kindly sent to The Black Cat by Ted Foss of that town. He writes:

"Why do you consider it so wrong to raise raspberries in October? I have had a raspberry pie or two in the icebox every day since Sept. 15, and have given away several boxes. Am sending you two boxes by Captain Burgess of the North Haven 11, and as they may have a rough passage across the Bay would suggest that even if they get jammed that they will still make good pies. They are as large and in as good shape as any that I sold to the Summer people last Summer, right now."

Belated evidences of our good Summer came also from Mrs. Evelyn Davis of 115 South Main street in the form of raspberries, roses and dandelions picked Tuesday.

Lettie R. Collamore of Friendship writes: "Mrs. Josie Simmons of Friendship, Long Island, has a white lilac bush that has several bunches of blossoms on it. The flowers may be a little smaller than those that it bore last Spring, but are just as fair and perfect as the earlier ones. (Continued on Page Three)

Lincolville Man Makes An Exhibition Of Colored Woodcuts There

It was announced today that an exhibition of colored woodcuts by William A. Shevits of Lincolville is now on view in the Farnsworth Museum's Square Gallery.

Mr. Shevits is a graduate of the Massachusetts School of Art in Boston and has had his work shown in most of the national print exhibitions including the Carnegie Institute "Fine Prints of the Year" in 1948.

The art of wood block cutting was the first of the graphic arts to be discovered. One of the great charms of this old medium is in the feeling of the wood itself and this quality is preserved in Shevits' work. His talent is a broad one and he treats portrait, landscape and purely decorative pieces with equal ease and power of expression. Twenty-six examples of his varied work are on exhibition.

Mr. Shevits is a member of the Boston Printmakers, the Northwest Printmakers, Laguna Beach (Cal.) Art Association and the American Artists Group.

An exhibition of watercolors from the museum collection is now being shown in the lower gallery. The museum is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. and on Sunday from 1 until 5 p. m. Closed Monday.

TRUE VISION

I noticed a man the other day,
I pitied him as he went his way.
He followed a dog and held a cane,
I knew he dwelt on another plane.
I thought: "He can't see the world of ours—
The beauties of nature—trees—and flowers."
I thought, "To him it's a different place."
And I slowed my steps to match his pace.
I talked with the man who held the cane.
As we walked together down the lane.
And found that my pity I must change
To great respect and to longing strange.
That man could see far better than I!
His limit was boundless; mine, the sky.
On the road of life alone I trod;
He had a helper—the Son of God!
My vision was fixed on earthly toys;
His was centered on Heavenly joys.
That man was godly, was clean,
was kind;
And I knew that I, not he, was blind.

About Free Ads

The Courier-Gazette Re-states Its Policy On Ads and Free Readers

The only way a newspaper can live is to have its income greater than its expenses, and the operating cost of all newspapers at present is very high. Only three sources of income are open to the average newspaper—subscriptions—job shop and advertising. In the case of The Courier-Gazette the advertising is strongest of the three.

As a result, advertising revenue must be protected if the paper is to continue to serve the community. An important source of revenue comes from advertising dances, rummage sales, fairs, suppers and the like, which raise money by admission, sale or collection. It has long been the policy of this newspaper to give free items, (publicity support) when requested to these sales, fairs, etc., when advertisements are used in its columns. This is a courtesy to advertisers and an additional boost to the venture.

It is obvious that only to such ventures carrying paid advertising can the courtesy of free advertising be extended. These affairs are not news, but money-making ventures. It is the definite policy of this newspaper to carry items concerning these ventures only when they carry advertising matter in The Courier-Gazette.

This newspaper tries meticulously to be fair to all concerned and it certainly would not be fair to those who use legitimate advertising if free advertising is given those who do not choose to use the advertising support of its columns.

[EDITORIAL]

KNOX COUNTY IS FORTUNATE

Sitting at the Clerk of Court's desk in the Superior Courtroom, as if she had always been accustomed to it is Miss Pearl Borgerson, who has been clerk to Milton M. Griffin ever since that capable official was elected 20-odd years ago. Mr. Griffin is an invalid at the moment, and the long flight of stairs to the courtroom bars his attendance there for the first time. In most cases it would have been necessary to summon a clerk from some other county but such an alternative was not necessary in Knox County which has a clerk to the clerk who is letter perfect in the multitude of details connected with that office. We believe that Miss Borgerson is the only woman in the State serving in that capacity.

THE NEED OF RAIN

In spite of frequent rains the past few weeks, intermingled with perfect Fall weather, the State's water level is far below normal at this season of the year, and with freezing weather so close at hand, the situation naturally causes concern. We have an example of the shortage right here at home for Mirror Lake, source of our water supply, is quite low—not alarmingly so but uncomfortable enough under the conditions.

A POPULATION INCREASE

Maine's population under the approaching census, will not be far below the million mark. Estimates show an increase of 62,000 or 7.3 percent above the 1940 census figures. This would bring the total to 909,000.

AN OBJECT LESSON

Dangers of present day motor traffic are brought vividly at home to those who ride or walk on Augusta's Main street. Placed there by the Division of Traffic Safety as an accident prevention warning was a mass of twisted steel, torn rubber and blood-soaked upholstery that Sunday morning bore four High School youths on a carefree hunting expedition. One of them is now dead—another is very seriously injured. The hundreds of people who stopped to look at this scrap metal also remembered the other car in the accident. So far of that car's five passengers three have died. The death of two of them orphaned seven children.

Mrs. Josephine Morse found a blue violet last week. I found a wild raspberry bush with blossoms and green berries on it last week. I brought it into the house and the green berries are now turning red.

How's that for the last week in October?

Among those who read my recent article concerning Rev. Frank W. Sandford, was Alfred Johnson, who recalls an incident which occurred while he was clerking in the Fuller & Cobb store. Sandford was a customer there one day and on his departure from the store dropped a $50 bill on the floor. One of the clerks overtook him and notified him of his loss. Mr. Sandford rewarded the finder with a ten-dollar bill.

Says That U. S. O. Campaign Deserves Wholehearted Support

Malcolm L. Stoddard, manager of the Veterans Administration State of Maine, has accepted the general chairmanship of the USO campaign in Maine.

In accepting he said, "The USO

WAS AN INFORMATIVE TALK

Clyde Taylor, Chief Biologist, Discusses Sea and Shore Fisheries

At the meeting Friday "Barney" Blued presented to Rotary its two junior Rotarians for the month of November—Jack Smith and Wesley Hoch from the High School.

A card signed by all Rotarians present was sent to Dave Connelly in the Camden hospital, wishing him a happy and speedy recovery.

President George announced that there would be no meeting Nov. 11 (Armistice Day) but on the 18th and especially on the 25th the meetings should be well attended. The 25th would celebrate the 25th anniversary of the local club, the meeting to be held in the evening and the event made the occasion for a ladies' night. President George hinted at plenty of joy and fun.

Jerry Burrows gave the smile for the day. The power of bourbon to arouse the courage of a wee mouse.

Fred Bird, pinchhitting for Seth Low, introduced the speaker, Clyde Taylor, chief biologist of Sea and Coast Fisheries.

The speaker, emphasizing the value of the fisheries to Maine, said that in 1948 the 305,000,000 pounds of fish caught netted to the fishermen alone some $16,000,000, and that Knox County led in this industry on the Maine coast. In quantities caught, herring came first, rose fish second, and lobsters third. In value of the catch the lobster first, herring second, and the soft clam, a comparatively newcomer, third.

It has been only in the past few years that the State has given any attention to the preservation of this industry, valuable as it is to the economic life of our coastal towns. In 1947 the Legislature decided that the Marine gasoline tax (formerly given for road taxes) should go into research work in Fisheries. First to determine the natural conditions in the ocean that affect the abundance of species. Second to find if deserves everybody's wholehearted support. It operates the morale building Veterans Hospital Camp Shows which regularly visit Maine's Veterans Hospital at Togus, as well as the 120 other Service hospitals throughout the Nation. Besides financing Veterans Hospital Camp Shows, the newly reactivated USO operates 170 service clubs, 19 of which are overseas, for the 1,600,000 boys and girls now in the service.

An effective organization covering the entire State is fast being completed, and active campaigns will start in several counties Dec. 1.

the abundance can be maintained, and possibly increased.

An example is in the halibut fisheries. In 1930 it was noticed that there was a great shrinkage in the halibut catch. The halibut is of slow growth and high mortality. Regulations of fishing intensity, restricting the gear of vessels, the amount of the catch to each vessel, and assigning quotas to areas are helping to restore this industry.

The lobster still ranks first as a money-maker for fishermen. The speaker gave a most interesting account of the evolution of the lobster from the egg through the various stages of its growth, its mortality, its perils, its survivals, and its final emergence after six years into the commercial product.

The laboratory is now studying the effect of water temperatures on the abundance of lobsters. A general conclusion has been reached that a warm Summer is productive of lobsters. If six years ago we had a warm Summer we could look for a good supply in this year.

The great majority of lobsters caught weigh one pound, whereas restaurants and hotels want the 1½ and 2-pound lobster. The mid-West, in fact from Chicago out to the Coast, offers a great market for the one-pound lobster if it can only be kept alive. Fairly satisfactory experiments in keeping lobsters alive have been made with oxygen, and if and when a method of holding them alive is developed, chicken lobsters will no longer glut the market, but will be a source of tremendous revenue to Maine and Canadian fishermen.

In studying the smelt fisheries for the past two years, it was thought that this industry is not fished hard enough. Proper management could get a much better result. The smelts caught through the ice seems different than the smelt that runs into our streams and brooks, these latter spawn in layers that permits but a small percent to hatch. A suggestion is that more fishing in the spawning run be permitted, and that the fishermen be allowed to use a net, restricting the catch to a few fish. The use of the net would keep fishermen from wading the brooks, thus preserving the spawn on the stream bottom.

The laboratory is giving careful study to clams, scallops and shrimps. While our highest catch of shrimp has been 600,000 pounds, the speaker thought that many other areas besides Pemaquid and New Harbor have these fine sea delicacies.

In Municipal Court

Eugene Winchenbach of Waldoboro was given 30-day sentences in Municipal Court Friday morning on charges involving violation of the clam laws. First charge against the clam digger was for violation of probation imposed by Recorder Alfred Strout on Sept. 21 when he was before the court on charges of digging clams in a restricted area. He entered a plea of not guilty; the one-pound lobster if it can only be kept alive. Fairly satisfactory experiments in keeping lobsters alive have been made with oxygen, and if and when a method of holding them alive is developed, chicken lobsters will no longer glut the market, but will be a source of tremendous revenue to Maine and Canadian fishermen.

A charge of digging clams without a license brought a 30-day jail sentence which Winchenbach appealed to the February term of Superior Court.

The third warrant charged him with digging clams in a restricted area in Cushing. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail and entered an appeal to Superior Court. Complainant was Coastal Warden Donald Hickie.

Lucien Bishop of Lincolnville was fined costs of court of $2.70 on charges of failing to have a motor vehicle inspection sticker.

Farnsworth Museum
Paintings By Young Maine Artists—Dudley Holman's Gift

The North Gallery of the Farnsworth Museum in Rockland was opened today, with an exhibition of paintings by three younger Maine artists, all graduates of the Portland Art School: Roger Pierce, Edward Calder and Charles Dodge.

The work of these artists has Maine and the sea as their subject matter and is presented at this time in connection with National Art Week, being observed from Nov. 1 to Nov. 7.

In the same gallery are shown prints and drawings by George C. Wales from the museum collection. Mr. Wales has combined precise draughtsmanship and his exact knowledge of ships with a feeling of drama that have made his works favorites in the field.

Also currently on exhibition are the portraits of Cyrus Curtis by Joseph DeCamp and the Snider Children by Thomas Sully loaned to the museum by Mrs. Efram Zimbalist of Rockport and Philadelphia.

Among recent gifts to the museum is an exact model of the first passenger locomotive in the State of Maine, the "Pioneer" which ran from Bangor to Old Town in the early 1890's. This model, which may be seen in the museum library, was presented to the museum by Dudley Holman of Owl's Head.

Saturday morning children's art classes have begun again at the museum. At the first meeting last Saturday, over forty children enrolled and at the next meeting registration will definitely close for the season. A small fee is charged.

FARM AND GRANGE NEWS OF INTEREST IN KNOX AND LINCOLN COUNTIES

THE COUNTY AGENT'S CORNER

Wentworth Observes That Nobleboro Is Fast Becoming a Poultry Raising Community

Dear Farmer:

Nobleboro is becoming a poultry town as many farmers are shifting from dairy into poultry. A recent call on Bertram Ricker found his dairy barn housing 1,000 pullets. Irving Oliver also has a good sized flock and this past year, David Chapman although in the neighboring town of Damariscotta, has added a small flock of hens to his dairy herd.

Wallace Spear & Son, North Waldo, are building a new hen pen that will be used both for breeding and for layers. It is double deck 30 to 70.

According to the October Poultry & Egg situation of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, it is expected that the January to June egg production will exceed that of this year. This will mean less returns to the poultrymen.

At the beginning of 1949 there were about 2,000 bulls in service in Artificial Breeding Associations throughout the United States. On an average each bull is serving 1250 cows.

Recent figures from the University of Delaware published in the Peninsula Broiler Journal shows the relationship of egg size to chick size when hatched. An egg averaging 30 ounces to the dozen produces a chick that will weigh about 47 grams. A 24 ounce egg produces a chick that weighs 37 grams and an 18 ounce egg a 28 gram chick.

It was also found that chicks from a given size of egg increase in size as the female parent matures up to about 8-12 months. Then the chicks gradually decrease in weight as the female parents approach 18-20 months of age.

They plan later to give figures on broiler growth from these chicks.

This past week was on North Haven for a meeting; met with a group of farmers at the Grange Hall. They were interested in improving their land and are planning to take some soil tests and will use lime as well as superphosphate next year. Among those interested were: Lloyd Crockett, Malcolm Crockett, Hiram Beverage, Verne Beverage, and Alton Calderwood.

The Rev. George Merriam was at the meeting and showed a great deal of interest in the Agricultural work of the island.

R. C. Wentworth, County Agent

4-H FOOD PROJECTS FOR 1949

Show Considerable Activity In Food Preparation, Plus Gardening and Pig Raising

During the past year 23,870 different foods were cooked and 3290 meals were prepared by 98 4-H Club members who carried the food preparation project.

4-H Senior girls who won first honors (a score of 85 or over) on their account sheets were: Sadie Gammon, Fay Payson, and Phyllis Payson of North Warren; Esther Hart and Jean Fish of Appleton; Lois Colburn and Carolyn Lufkin of East Warren; Judy Peters of West Dresden and Marita Butler of Thomaston.

Junior Girls winning first honors were: Flora Wiley and Carolyn Payson of North Warren; Avis Gammon of Warren; Gwendolyn Norwood, Bette Hall, Helen Mank, Nina Beverage and Jane Hart of Hope; Pearl Carver, Annette Weymouth and Reta Bailey of Dresden Mills and Bernice Hunt of Thomaston.

of Whitefield, and Robert Maddocks of Burkettville.

SUMMARY OF PIG PROJECT

Eleven pigs were raised by 11 club members in 1949. These pigs were valued at $515.40.

Esther Hart of Appleton and Naomi Gregoire of Alna were the girls who took the pig project. Boys taking care of pigs were: Irving Lufkin, Jr., of East Warren; Earl Gammon, Gilbert Martin and Sewall Peabody of Warren; Donald Reed of North Appleton; David Hart and Stephen Norwood of Hope; Charles Prest of Whitefield and Linwood Campbell of West Rockport.

Home Marketing Tips

Eggs are now at the most attractive prices to consumers since January of 1947, as the result of a sharp break in the wholesale egg market, reflected in much lower retail prices.

Starting on Oct. 20, prices of large size New England eggs on the Boston wholesale market dropped a total of eighteen cents in seven days. The effect on retail prices was unusually rapid, with one of the principal chains in the Boston area dropping store prices on large size eggs fourteen cents within 10 days. On Oct. 27 the market recovered slightly with wholesale prices going up two cents a dozen; and some sales were another cent higher on Oct. 28.

Esther D. Mayo Home Demonstration Agent of the Agricultural Extension Service says that several things caused the egg price drop. These include a large production by New England hens, favorable October weather conditions; some decrease in orders for hatching eggs as well as the fact that poultrymen started flocks earlier this year.

Mrs. Mayo says that the large supply of eggs will continue with supplies running ahead of last year. There are more than a million laying hens in New England flocks than a year ago.

Pancy, top-quality eggs are desirable for frying, poaching and cooking in the shell. But the lesser grades are suitable for cakes, omelets, scrambling or creaming.

Keep eggs in the refrigerator or some other cool place; and keep them away from strong foods to prevent the eggs acquiring off-flavors.

GARDEN SUMMARY

Twenty-eight boys and girls in the garden project raised three acres of garden produce, valued at $1592.56.

4-H members completing projects were: Andrew Williamson, Jefferson; Irving Lufkin, Jr., and Philip Robinson of East Warren; Donald Reed, Frances Reed, John Reed, Ellen Reed, Mervyn Mank, Lucille Jackson and Jean Jackson of North Appleton; Kenneth Bartlett of Union; Margaret Erskine, Camden; C. Herbert Annis, Ralph Miller, and John Annis, Jr., of Simonton's Corner; Alton Gammon of North Warren; Kenneth Starrett of Warren; Asa T. Hall, Walter Campbell, George Jacobs and H. Wilbur Jacobs of Hope; Mary Louise Brown and Barbara Robinson of West Dresden; Floyd, Ralph and William Bennett of North Edgcomb; Charles Prest

Monday, Jan. 2, 1905, was set as the date for the trial of Charles T. Tucker, who had been indicted on the charge of murdering Miss Mabel Page at Weston, Mass., on March 31.

Once again the old adage, "As Maine Goes So Goes the Nation," was proved when Theodore Roosevelt was elected President of the United States. The New York Tribune predicted the vote was the largest ever cast.

Rockland's vote was tabulated as follows: Roosevelt and Fairbanks, Rep., 711; Parker and Davis, Dem., 342; Swallow and Carroll, Pro., 8; Debs and Hanford, Soc., 49.

"A family in Pittsburg, Pa., was having their laundering done in Castine, the expressage costing $9 weekly. One item being 36 pairs of lace curtains. They intended to have their washing dried as far away from the smoky city as possible," so reads a news item.

BING GIVES BEAR PAL JASPER GOLF LESSON

BING CROSBY, who competed in the annual Totem Pole golf tournament at Jasper Park Lodge, Canadian Rockies, makes friends with everybody—even the clownish old bears. This fellow hangs around the garage lot where Bing keeps his car and waits for a handful of sugar. "You're a good guy not to bother me for autographs, so I'll show you how to make a chip shot. You'll be able to beat Hope one of these days" smiled the Great Crooner. Bing's the guy on the right.

Rockport Lunch Gains Recognition

The three Farm Bureau groups in Rockport, Simonton, Rockport and West Rockport, have been cited by Gertrude Griney, State supervisor of the school lunch program, in an article in the publication "Maine Schools," just issued.

Subject of the article is the school lunch program which the three bureaus established in the community the past year and which are now serving hot noon lunches to 100 pupils.

The bureau members enlisted the aid of Home Demonstration Agent Esther Mayo, school board members, school officials and teachers and welded the whole into a working group with the people of the town to put the project across.

Now one year old, the program has attracted Statewide attention. A paid cook is employed at Rockport High School with two Farm Bureau members assisting her each day with each of the three bureaus supplying workers in rotation.

Many a Farm Bureau member, this past Summer, earmarked the part of their farm produce for use in the lunch program this winter. Lunches served are classed by the State as Class A which must contain two ounces of meat, six ounces of vegetables; milk and bread and butter or margarine.

The project has developed in a program in which the whole town is interested and supporting.

The above photograph, taken by a Department of Agriculture photographer, shows the lineup at the serving kitchen in the town school and was used on the cover of the publication which featured the article on the Rockport program.

Buy Jersey Bulls

Breeding Co-ops Adds To Its Herd At the Vassalboro Model Bull Farm

Two promising young Jersey bulls have been bought by the Maine (Artificial) Breeding Co-operative for use at its bull farm in Vassalboro.

The bulls were bought from the Pinnacle Rock Farm in Connecticut. Both were sired by Juggler's Tycoon, a senior superior sire. His daughters have averaged 10,349 pounds of milk and 540 pounds of butterfat in 305 days on twice-a-day milking. They have had an average classification rating of 83.5.

The dams of both the new MBC Jersey bulls are classed very good on type. Both have twice-a-day milking. 305-day records of over 10,000 pounds of milk.

The new bulls were born in January and March of this year. They are both outstanding in type and most dairymen who've seen them like their looks very much. Both are line-bred Sybils backed by the good type and very high milk production of their ancestors.

The MBC has about 35 outstanding bulls and provides semen for breeding Maine dairy cows of four breeds, Ayrshire, Guernsey, Holstein and Jersey.

Membership is open to any farmer in the areas of the State being served by MBC technicians.

Leaders' Party

Will Be Held Next Monday At Damariscotta—Mrs. Shibles To Speak

A party for 4-H leaders is being held Monday night Nov. 7 at 7 p. m. in the Baptist Church Vestry in Damariscotta.

"Highlights for 1950" will be reviewed by Loana S. Shibles, Club Agent.

4-H problems will be discussed by County 4-H Club Project Leader, Mrs. Hazel Gammon of North Warren.

One new game will be taught by Frank Flagg, leader of the Jeffersonian Farmers.

The remainder of the evening will be spent with games and prizes followed by plenty of sandwiches, donuts, cookies, and coffee.

Harrow Lime Under

Maine potato growers who spread lime on their cultivated fields this Fall would be wise to harrow it in right after it's applied, Oscar L. Wyman, crops specialist, Agricultural Extension Service, University of Maine, pointed out today. If farmers spread lime before the ground freezes and don't mix it with the soil by harrowing, the lime will wash down the slopes during the Fall rains and the Spring runoff. This makes it very important to be sure the lime is mixed with the soil on all bare or plowed fields, explained Wyman. All that's usually needed is one thorough harrowing, the Extension crops specialist emphasized.

Flyer Reactions Studied Through X-Ray Equipment

Knowledge of how a flyer reacts physically to the strain when he makes a crash landing or is catapulted from a crippled plane is being obtained in one of the more recent uses of the millionth-of-a-second X-ray equipment.

Both army and navy medical laboratories are experimenting by making sequence photographs to obtain visual evidence of what happens to a pilot's spine, heart and other organs under such conditions.

In crash landings, a flyer undergoes a shock equivalent to 10 times that suffered by a motorist if he could halt his machine in one second from an 85-mile-an-hour speed. Body harnesses cushion such deceleration blows, but more knowledge of the action of the body organs may be of value in further solving the problem, according to Dr. Charles M. Slack, research director of the Westinghouse lamp division, Bloomfield, N. J.

Advent of supersonic airplane speeds presents another difficulty. If a pilot tried to climb out at such a speed, he would be cut to ribbons by the wind, so a mechanical device "fires him out" when a button is pushed.

The high acceleration necessary to get the pilot out without his striking the plane causes another violent jerk to his organs, 20 times as severe as the normal pull of gravity, Dr. Slack notes.

Old Bugs with New Tricks Baffle Strawberry Grower

Sometimes it looks as though the war between men and bugs never will end. No sooner is one insect pest overcome than a new one appears or an old one is found up to new tricks.

For instance, the southeast Louisiana strawberry growers are distressed to discover that after all these years the ground beetle, a little bug found almost everywhere, has started eating strawberries. First, he eats the little seed off the outside of the berry and then he starts in on the berry itself and nibbles a little bite out of it, about like a bird might take at one peck.

Won't some of the powerful new insecticides take care of the ground beetle? Yes, one of them will. Benzene hexachloride will kill the ground beetle in the wink of an eye. But there's only one catch—benzene hexachloride has such a powerful odor and lingers so long on anything it touches that it can't be used on strawberries without endangering all the fruit on the plant or anywhere in the vicinity. Experts have advised the berry growers to use an older and slower method of making poison pellets of sodium fluosilicate, meal, sugar and water and scattering them along the row, while new means of fighting the beetle are being worked out.

Court Is Recessed

Illness In Family Calls Justice Clarke To Ellsworth—Court Notes

Knox Superior Court recessed suddenly Thursday night when the presiding justice, Percy T. Clarke of Ellsworth, was called to the bedside of a seriously ill member of his family. As far as is now known, sessions will be resumed Monday.

To the time of court being halted, naturalization proceedings had been held for four new citizens; several divorces heard in the judge's chambers and the hearing of one civil case started.

New citizens are, Herbert A. Duffell of Camden a native of England; Ellen Hocking Allenwood of Camden, native of England; Maya Stevens Bamford of Friendship, native of Ireland and Antti Tyrisseva of Washington, native of Finland, who was granted the right to be known as Andrew Anderson, a name he has used since settling in this country.

Naturalization examiner William G. Ward of Portland was present for the ceremonies during which Mrs. Beulah Ames of Rockland presented the new citizens with American flags on behalf of Lady Knox Chapter D.A.R.

Testimony was heard Thursday in a civil suit between Nicholas Caraganis of Thomaston and Fredrick Kittredge of Rockland. The suit arose from an automobile accident, March 12, on U.S. 1 between Rockland and Thomaston in which Caraganis claims both he and his daughter sustained injuries when their car was struck by the Kittredge car.

The following letter was received from Mrs. Edith Kendall, R. N., Wilmington, Del.:

"Oct. 7 a meeting was held at New York State Nurses' Association Office, District No. 14, Brooklyn, at which time John Baetes, representative, Pennsylvania Railroad, Wilmington, Del., office, spoke regarding a Convention train to the American Nurses' Association Biennial Convention California, May 7 to 12, 1950.

"The purpose of the meeting was to present the idea of a Convention Train and to discuss such a plan in regards to accommodations, approximate cost ($500), time of departure, and return, stop-overs, sight seeing trips, etc., as available if said plans are adopted. In order to make such a tour possible, it was stated at the meeting that it will be necessary for us to secure 150 to 250 nurses and their friends and relatives for the proposed trip, covering a period of three weeks.

"We hope that you and your members and other interested nursing groups in your state, plus any other interested persons, will join us in adopting this proposed plan for a Convention Train. If such a plan is agreeable to you, will you begin immediately publicity in order to have an approximate estimate of interested persons on or before Nov. 15, 1949, said estimate to be forwarded to me by that date. This is in order that the Wilmington office of the Pennsylvania Railroad can prepare a flyer with complete information and reservation blanks, which will be sent to all interested in our proposed plan, this flyer to be mailed out no later than December 15, 1949."

HYMNS

If you look through your church hymnals you will be surprised to note how many of the hymns were written in the long ago. The most amazing thing about congregational singing is that however correctly sung, few of the singers ever note who wrote the hymn or tune or when.

Hymns do not just happen. Many are born during the stress of wars or the distress of the time when written. To know their history would make for more effective singing. The greatest composers of all time have given expression to the loftiest conception of the holiness of God, of Jesus Christ, and the church, in hymns.

It has long been my conviction that in hymns are found a truer apprehension of the majesty and holiness of God and His kingdom and less of theological dogma than is to be found in literature or most sermons.

A most common mistake is made when it is thought that in this day no great hymns of consequence have been written. In what great war has a nobler hymn been written than Julia Ward Howe's "Battle Hymn of the Republic;" when one more patriotic than "America the Beautiful" by Katherine Lee Bates, particularly when sung to the music of the former municipal organist, Will C. Macfarlane?

Rockland's beloved minister who built the Galilee Chapel, wrote a hymn that has been translated into almost every language on earth and which has been sung the world around—"Throw Out The Life Line" by Rev. E. S. Ufford. Can you think of a more beautiful hymn than Phillips Brooks' "Oh Little Town of Bethlehem?"

Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick's hymn "Grant Us Wisdom, Grant Us Power!" ranks among the best, old or new.

I want to examine with you this Fall some of the great hymns of the church and their writers.

REALM of MUSIC

by
Gladys S. Heistad

Since seeing the delightful movie "That Midnight Kiss" at The Strand, great interest—and much curiosity—has been evinced in the young tenor, Mario Lanza, who certainly "emerged from the stereo-type with considerable impact"—to quote from a review. Called on to sing the arias "Una furtiva lagrima" from Donizetti's L'Elisir d'Amore, and "Celeste Aida" as well as a duet from Lucia di Lammermoor with Kathryn Grayson and three songs of a lighter nature, Mr. Lanza revealed a command of style and a voice that is beautiful in quality, of wide range, and flexible. And it is not all voice, for he is rather handsome, with a pleasant and ingratiating manner.

While I have not been able to learn much about him, I do know that he is Italian-American and at one time he worked as a piano mover in Philadelphia. It is said that William K. Huff, director of the Philadelphia Forum, heard Lanza singing while helping to move pianos into the Academy of Music for a concert by the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Huff arranged for him to sing for Serge Koussevitzky, who invited him to study at the Berkshire Music Center.

After service in the Army, the tenor entered on a career which eventually led him to Hollywood, and recording and managerial contracts. He is hailed by some as the "Young Caruso." In any event it will be interesting to watch his progress. Musical Courier for Oct. 15 carries a picture of this sensational new tenor shown with Constantine Callinicos making final decisions on the matter of placing for the RCA Victor recording just released featuring Lanza. Of the recording, it is said "Mario Lanza, billed as the new Caruso, enters the picture with three discs, only one of any account. His Verdi and Puccini coupling 'Verdi, Celeste Aida' with the Victor Orchestra, and Puccini's 'Che Gelida Manina' from Boheme) rather carefully sung reveals a fresh strong lyric voice. Despite immaturities of style, the vocalism has its impressive moments. The other two discs, Kern, Nettle, etc., mean little."

A pleasant surprise was a letter from Harris Shaw, who still belongs to us even though his musical activities keep him in Boston and whereabouts. Speaking of Walter Piston, a former Rockland boy and now one of our outstanding musical figures, Harris said that Piston studied with him in Boston and that he was able to intercede for him getting into Harvard, where he has held a position of eminence. Harris comments "wonderful student, retiring nature but brilliant. At that time not enough money to buy anything and struggling along." I suspect that Harris held out a generous and helping hand at this

of Ships and Men

John M. Richardson

Steamboaters' Problem from 1918

This great ship came to the Penobscot on an errand of mercy.

Back around 1909 this section of the Maine coast was visited by a Winter of extreme severity with much snow in December and January and a resulting ice embargo that brought fears of starvation for the island folk in quarters far removed from the mainland. As a result a benevolent government sent the great steamboat shown above to banish the danger and open up the Penobscot, sea lanes.

The huge vessel huffed and she puffed and did open up some channels and some seams of her own and is shown above working on the heavy ice off Crotch Island whose stone sheds and derricks appear in the background.

Near the huge laker but not shown in this picture was the famous local ice breaker, Gov. Bodwell, and some say, slightly ahead of the huge two stacker.

Who can remember the visit of this stranger, her name and some of the circumstances concerning her ice breaking activities. Strand tickets await the first two stories.

Frank Miller To The Rescue

The Steamboat Editor was just getting a little less red behind the ears over his slip of the pen in saying the Boston-Bangor Division of the Eastern had used Rows Wharf, Boston, as a landing place when he knew perfectly well it had been Foster's and India, when appeared a champion, in a left-handed script of way.

From Frank H. Miller of Belfast an old steamboater in his own right, comes the comforting (?) word that I was not entirely wrong. Rows Wharf was used as a landing once. On this particular foggy morning Capt. Ezra Curtis was bringing in the old paddler, City of Rockland, and he brought her into Rows Wharf, over ten feet in to be exact and directly into the landing slip. For many months after that friends would ask the irate captain if he'd take them uptown in the Rockland.

Many correct answers came into last Saturday's problem monstrosity. It was the steamer Vinal Haven at her cockeyed worst, fresh from the builder's yard at Searsport and as yet not having received the great improvement which took place when she was swept by a lively fire in January, 1893. When the steamer came back from builders, months later, she was vastly improved both in appearance and performance.

The first two letters opened of the score received, belonged to Mrs. Blanche Merchant, South street, and Harland C. Davis of Pleasant Point, Cushing. To them go tickets to Strand Theatre.

(WJZ Saturdays 10 to 10:30 a. m.) The program director and commentator is Dr. Sigmund Spaeth, newly appointed Radio Chairman of the Federation. Orchestral music will be heard for the most part through records and transcriptions, while soloists will be supplied at the outset by the network. Later these will probably come from the ranks of distinguished young artists who have reached prominence through the Federation's Young Artists and Student Musicians contests. The underlying motive of the program is to introduce a fine musical feature on the air, and in some measure to help offset the recent withdrawals of several distinguished offerings on major networks.

Mary Garden returned to America on Sept. 28 for the first time since her voluntary retirement from the stage. The return was just as spontaneous as the withdrawal had been. Both happened on the spur of the moment, or rather without previous fanfare. One evening in 1939 Miss Garden decided that the time had come to give up her operatic career, and out of the opera house she walked, never to return. This year she decided she would like to see America again and her numerous friends here—and here she is, still a unique personality.

During the last war Miss Garden threw her home in Scotland open to American soldiers. On the estate of her sister as many as 190 men at a time were stationed—and entertained. Miss Garden is to make a lecture tour across the Continent and hopes to see some of these "boys" during the tour. Subjects she will discuss in her lecture are music and her personal memories, spiced with many anecdotes. Some of this material is contained in a biography started in 1938 and now finished awaiting publication.
